RIGHTS OF WAY

The Maori Land Amendment and Maori Land Claims Adjustment Act 1926 set aside a 20 metre wide public right-of-way around the shore of Lake Taupo. Apart from a few small areas that were in European freehold title at that time, and therefore have riparian rights, most of the lakeshore is covered by either this right-of-way or public reserve.

Further, the 1926 Act and Proclamation set aside a 20 metre wide right-of-way on foot for licensed anglers on both banks of the portions of the rivers specified below:

Waihora Stream - from mouth upstream 9.6 km
 Waihaha River - from mouth upstream 9.6 km
 Whanganui Stream - from mouth upstream 1.6 km
 Whareroa Stream - from mouth upstream 4.8 km
 Kuratau River - from mouth upstream 16 km

 Tauranga-Taupo River - from mouth upstream 4.8 km (approximately to The Parade)
 Waiephi Stream - from mouth to source
 Hinemaiaia River - from mouth upstream 4.8 km
 Waitahanui River and tributaries - from mouth to source

Note that fishing is presently prohibited in the Whareroa and Waiephi Streams.

NB In some cases portions of both lakeshore and riverbank rights of way have been reduced in width to ten metres (e.g. Waitahanui lakeshore just south of the river mouth) or three metres (e.g. Mangamutu Stream from approximately 100m above its mouth to the boundary of Kaingaroa Forest).

There is a map on page 20 of this booklet which also shows the district boundaries and other fishing information.*
